DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

316 Gittings Avenue is a three story, three bay wooden clapboard building. Its slate-shingled mansard roof suggests the Second Empire style. Three shed dormers with windows of 1/1 lights decorate the roof. Windows of the first story, on either side of the main entrance, have 6/6 lights and shutters. The main entrance has a flat-topped transom and side panels. A large veranda, supported by eight Doric columns, terminates on the left with a porte-cochere.

316 Gittings Avenue is located within the middle-to-upper class community of Cedarcroft.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

316 Gittings Avenue is a unique building in the Govans area. The mansard roof was popularized in the United States about 1870, and this building, built around the same time, was the first in Govans to have this feature. Presently, only one other building in Govans, the Seitz Funeral Home (see #32), has a mansard roof.

Apparently built as a summer estate, 316 Gittings Avenue has a large veranda, a feature which was used on many styles of summer cottages in Govans.

Gittings Avenue was one of the earlier side roads of Govans where summer cottages were built. The Bromley Atlas of Baltimore County (1915) shows that the estate was at one time owned by a man named John Griffith.
